My Reflection!

I had an amazing time being a leader of the class parade, though it was really tough and tiring, I enjoyed it so much. I realized that being a leader is such a difficult job, a good leader has to be responsible and reliable, and unluckily, I'm not that kind of person. What's more, I don't usually be a leader of anything. ~~But~~ But this time, is a different situation, most of the classmates were ~~not~~ not participating, they were messing around, and they were not concentrating on the practice, which really ~~was~~ ^{broke} breaks my heart. I have spent time, effort and energy on this parade preparing the parade, I was so depressed about their behavior, and it really made me angry, then I shouted at them and I blamed at them, which made them more uncooperative. After that, I realized that the leader (me) should be a role model and show them ~~as~~ ~~my~~ the right attitude, if I'm mad, they'll be mad, if I'm happy, they'll be happy, if I'm concentrating, they'll be concentrating. That's what being a leader about.

I have to admit that I've learned so much from this parade, and I'd like to thank my teacher for supporting me and giving the opportunity to show and build up my my talents and build up my leadership and my responsibility.
